

Offering a Four-Week Trial of Live-in Care Support

Most of us would like to remain as independent as is possible, it makes our quality of life better, more enjoyable and keeps us healthier.

When we become frailer, there are two main choices: To move into a residential care setting or to have live-in care support in your own home.

1. Moving into a residential care setting and selling your home, means that a final decision has been taken.
2. Having a Live-in Care Scheme means that you can enjoy support in your own home, before taking such a decision.

To help people make their choice Able Community Care has a Four Week Trial Period - Live-in Care Support Scheme, with no commitment to a long-term contract.

For four weeks, professional carers will offer domestic and personal care support plus companionship in your own home. Nationwide service. Call us for details re cost and availability.
